Sophomores

These two-year-olds have passed the "green" stage and are on their way to being tomorrow's upper-classmen. Since their entrance into high school, the school's activities have increased, and the lists of honor have been made longer. They have had to adjust themselves to high school work, but they will find that many more adjustments will be needed to go successfully through their junior year, with physical fitness and victory math classes coming along. Although these special classes are old stuff to the juniors and seniors today, they will be quite a novelty to the sophomores, when it comes time for them to do their part in the war effort.

This class has shown its appreciation to the school by "bringing home the bacon" from many outside activities. Some of their names are well-known the state over for fine skill and good sportsmanship. All hail to you, sophomores!

Freshmen

Although they are considered "green" by upperclassmen, they are not really so "grass-colored" as they seem. They have taken their teasing, and some day they will be able to take it out on other freshmen, who will come after them.

They have eagerly joined various organizations and clubs, and their names have been loudly applauded for their fine work in debate, sports, and music. They have worked hard to earn their credits in these extra-curricular activities.

Even though time seems long, they will undoubtedly learn, as we have, "never to put off until tomorrow what can be done today." Many people, young and old, have forgotten these well-spoken words and have regretted it for a long time after.

So our advice to the freshmen is this: Work hard and long, but take time out for a little fun, now and then. Remember all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

Eighth Grade

This higher grade of junior high will be the freshmen of high school next year, and as other classes before them have done, they will go on through the next four years in short order. This group has nearly completed its elementary school training. These boys and girls have played a big part in the junior high chorus during their two years of participation in school activities. Their support of R. H. S. is as whole-hearted, enthusiastic, and loyal as that of any other high school group.

When they entered the portals of R. H. S., they had high ideals and were bright-eyed and eager. Now, as they look forward to the coming years, they are more eager, and their ideals are, no doubt, higher than ever before. We hope they will help to carry the torch of democracy for the sake of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Seventh Grade

These boys and girls have been in Rushville Junior High School just two semesters, and they have already learned to boost our team and school. They compose the youngest class in the high school, and it seems this younger generation is much smaller in stature than the seventh graders of five years ago. They have proved that, although they are small in body, their minds have been well developed.

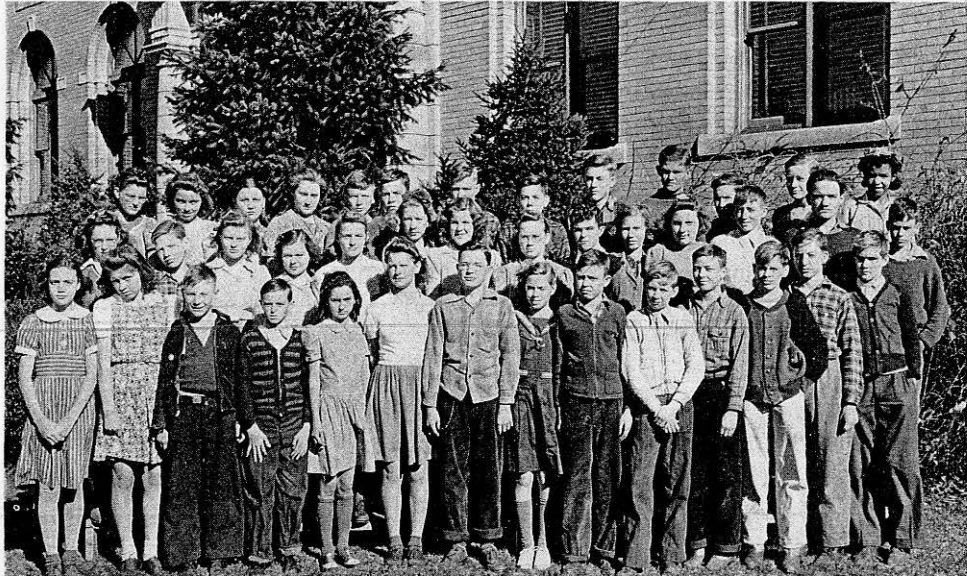

These are the students with ink-stained hands and column-ruled papers, the marks of a seventh-grade pupil. Despite this, they will be the pride and joy of R. H. S. in coming years. Each and every one of this younger set hopes, as the rest of us do, to some day be graduated with honors from good old Rushville High School.

May their future years in this school hold as much happiness as the last four years have held for the seniors of '43.
